

Raziel

Our story is about a man named Farro Fleming who found and gained the power of an artificial lifeform named Raziel. When both were on the verge of death, as a last ditch effort, Raziel made Farro his host, which meant that they both needed each other to live. Raziel was created by Farro's grandfather as a guardian, which was passed down to Farro's parents, Christopher and Laura Fleming. Raziel is contained in a pocket watch worn by Christopher. The general consensus was that the Flemings died on a bridge when their horses went wild and drove them off into the water. The unknown fact is the Royal Family had them killed so they could steal Raziel and leave no witnesses. Thomas, who leads the Royal Family's army was able to steal some of Raziel's power but a surge of power forced him to release it, which gave Christopher the opportunity to flip it into the fast running river, which led to the family home where Farro was waiting for them. The next morning, Farro saw the watch float by. He jumped in after it, and shortly after that, he began his training with Raziel. Farro and Raziel keep each other alive through several years of training. Farro begins his plans to retaliate against the Royal Family.

This is where the game starts.